Just one year after receiving Mr. and ingham on board, I bid them farewell, pleasated on their island home. The first day of ing on shore here was the first anniversary of marriage. Making all sail we quickly passed at the southern passage, and soon Apia, with all nteresting associations, sank behind the wave.

THURSDAY, DEC. 3D .- Strong breeze from S. E. with SATURDAY, DEC. 5TH.-At noon saw Covel Island ght shead. The breeze freshening we came up very and ran along the south side of the island. There sere several fishing canoes off the son a est side, and a son as they saw the dove flying at the main they is, and some came alongside, while others nel off to the shore to convey the glad news of arrival. After rounding the S. W. point of the we hauled up for the passage and soon were met affeen or twenty canoes, having on board about people, who manifested their joy by every demontion possible-shouting, dancing, and singing. we the vessel, with all her sails and colors set, eating up to the passage with a train of 15 or 20 are proas in her wake, alive with laughing, shoutnatives, was a scene that was calculated to awaken reliest sensibilities in the heart of both missionrd, and on being presented to his Majesty, he took ad and pressed it upon his breast, at the same It being Saturday I was anxious to find Leaving the vessel in charge of the mate, nately find one. The passage to the lagoon led between two islets, flanked by wide reefs, between sich I found a depth of 25 fathoms, with room suffim this position the bottom fell off at an angle of 45 the danger therefore being, that if we dragged at it would be off shore. Going on board and seeing ready, we stood in, and dropped both anchors. It g near night I was unable to make any further ations, so I obeyed the sound of the tea-bell. heavy squalls rising in the E. N. E. The first that struck us started our anchors, and from this till Tuesday night, I scarcely closed my eyes to p; the harsh, grating sound of the anchors, dragant thunder. At daylight, Sabbath morn, the wind auled E. S. E., and then died away, when torrents fruin fell and continued till Monday morning, when in fine weather, and hearing of another but after a faithful search. I found no such anorage existed. Well! what shall I do? It will be ssary for this vessel to stop here at least two her must go on shore every morning-come off every night, and we must have our water casks filled, beside ing wood and ballast. Under these circumstances the promised to have men stationed on the reef to had the vessel through the next day, if the wind continued ahead. During the night the tide set us fir amund to the east side of the island and we did ight and clear, and we saw the natives mustering the reef in great numbers. The wind was light tide was flowing. Just as we arrived at the confinence of the two passages, I let go an anchor to bring re were about 150 men on the reef in readiness r their task, and most nobly did they accomplish, for she did not touch on either side. After clearing the passage the Rev. Mr. Gulick offered prayer in dock, after which we made all sail, a tour colors, and gave three cheers, taking possession of the lagoon in the name of the Lord. We od over to the east side of the lagoon, and then up to anchorage, as marked on the chart Here we lay per ct'y secure. Boats can go and come at any time. "Put them e about forty yards apart, situated in a grove of y brendfruit trees, and at this season of the year is most delightfully ecol and pleasant. DEC 24TH .- Dr. Pierson's house is so far cometel that he has consented to my sailing to-morrow. Donne is building a partition to receive his fam-4 o'clock P. M .- Partition is finished and he sents to my leaving to-morrow. Wood, water, and last is all on board. Christmas morning commencel heaving short. Getting under way on a lee are, with a strong wind required some caution. Having carried out our kedge, all hands clapt on and inchor. So soon as it cleared the bottom our kedge sarp parted, and we we were obliged to let go anchor again. I thought it was time now to go to work. Getting up two new coils of four stranded Manila tope that we had brought out from Boston with us, weighed the kedge the second time, and backed it another and carried it out 100 fathoms. There ing at this time 60 to 70 natives on board we hauled the vessel ahead and let her hang till after dinner, being now sure of getting my anchor up so I could fill away and slip my lines. This was handsomely effected, and after getting an offing I sent the officers weigh the anchors and bring them on board. All being ready and the wind being fair, we squared away and ran through the passage and hove to off the Mission. Taking Mrs. Deane and the king with up for them. As they gathered around the large me I proceeded on shore, where we held a short ayer-neeting, and then took leave of our friends at 5, P. M., on the 25th. The Board of Directors having recommended the first day of January as being about the time of my taking my departure, I wished to spend the intervening six days, if the wind permitted in running up the whole length of the Ralick chain and establishing the position of its several isllands. Covel island is 45 miles too far west on the English chart. For 48 hours it was very foul weather, and I kept on by the southern islands without seeing them. Subbath morning came in bright and clear, and we took good observations. It was clear at noon also, and we found our correct latitude. Having ascertained our position I found that we were at noon about 40 miles south of the Menzikoff, and 20 miles west of the north end of the Mosquito Group. We re steering on the wind, heading N. N. W. At 2 P. M. land was announced two points on our lee bow.

After having carefully looked over my figures, and find ing no error. I concluded that this land was part of the Menzikoff Group, and that it had been laid down wrong on the chart. Going aloft I perceived at once that we were approaching a compact, small coral island, not being more than a mile and a half in circumference. Well, is this a discovery? It is not marked down on the latest charts, either English of American. Finley says nothing about it in his description of the islands, and I know that it would being one sounding-lead lost and two cars broke.
